

Voters believe natural gas is key to moving America towards a cleaner energy future.

Voters believe climate change is a pressing problem and natural gas is part of the solution.

70%

of voters report they are concerned about climate change.

84%

of voters agree that the natural gas industry should continue playing a role in reducing emissions.

70%

of voters agree natural gas is a clean energy source.

Voters want climate change solutions that balance affordability and reliability.

82%

of voters feel America's climate change solutions should consider affordability.

83%

of voters agree natural gas is a reliable energy source, especially during inclement weather.

America's natural gas and vast energy delivery infrastructure are essential to meeting our nation's greenhouse gas emissions reduction goals. By including natural gas, advanced fuels and the industry's world class infrastructure, we can expand opportunities to slash emissions, unleash greater innovation and enhance energy reliability. Learn more at www.aga.org/netzero.

Voters support investment in the research and development of innovative energy sources.

77%

of voters feel that Congress should invest in research for new clean energy technologies.

77%

of voters support clean energy solutions that use our existing energy infrastructure.

Voters agree that natural gas is important to our energy mix.

83%

agree the natural gas industry is an important part of America's economy.

76%

of voters indicate they have a more favorable impression of natural gas after hearing that 92% of natural gas used in America is produced in America.